Introduction

Natural ingredients for success

A perfect, inspiring product is the result of many important elements. First of all, we truly believe that natural is the healthiest – that's why we get our fruit and vegetables mainly from Polish farms as well as regular and approved suppliers. In addition to natural raw materials, our core business means innovative technologies. A modern machine park and the continuous improvement of the quality control system allows us to achieve the highest standards resulting from the implemented systems and compliance with legal provisions.

All of these elements make our products stand out on the market with their unique properties. The natural dried ingredients we create meet the highest requirements of our customers and work well in all kinds of food products. We use the extensive experience of our team in cooperation with the largest companies in the food industry and in relationships with long-term business partners. Our customers can be sure that we provide unique, tasty and functional food products.

Our product range is complemented by a wide range of services including drying, mixing, grinding, granulation, packaging and designing new products.

PET FOODS

Other fruit, vegetables and flavours (or their fractions) are available after individual arrangements. Selected products are available at the specified MOQ.

Our services - apply to food products

We are ready to perform customised drying services for raw materials at a number of specialized production lines as well as services including other final product preparation processes. However, each time separate arrangements between the parties are required before a decision on cooperation is made.

MIRVAC[®] drying

Thanks to the microwave-vacuum drying method developed by the PAULA Ingredients technological team, we obtain delicately crunchy, natural-looking products with an intense aroma and taste of fresh fruit / vegetables, as well as a high concentration of nutritional value.

Spray drying

A drying method thanks to which we obtain powdered products from concentrates, aromas, purées and extracts. Spray-dried products are micro-encapsulated (their aroma is only released after water is poured on them).

Drum drying

A drying technology which is widely used for liquids, gels and pastes. The result of the process is products in the form of flakes or powder. An additional advantage of this method is the possibility of drying raw materials without the use of additional carriers.

Service under development

Granulate

Transformation of powdered products / flour into granules of various sizes. Granulated products do not change their properties, such as flavour and colour. Their advantage is the possibility of using them in applications in which the powdered form cannot be used (e.g. teabags).

Grinding

We provide the option to shred / grind dried products obtained from various food technologies with the possibility of adjusting the size of the fraction of the target finished product.

Mixing

We prepare mixtures from loose products from external and our own raw materials. They are made according to the original ideas - individual recipes of our clients or new compositions and flavours which are developed in cooperation with our R&D department.

Packaging

Food producers and distributors are offered packaging services for loose food products in various forms. We offer system solutions for the packaging process and always adapt the scope of our services to the client's needs.

Design

Our comprehensive service can cover all stages: preparation of the recipe, technical facilities covering the stage of product implementation, technological consulting and support in the field of labelling and packaging.
